Be part of the first German-wide meeting of Helmholtz PhD Students! Present your research at a multi-disciplinary conference - organized by PhDs for PhDs - and shape your network.

Helmholtz Juniors

The Conference

NextGen@Helmholtz 2016 aims to connect PhD students from all Helmholtz Centres. The program will encompass a variety of both scientific and social events, including expert panels, poster sessions, alumni talks, a science slam, a pub quiz and much more.

Take up the opportunity to present your own scientific work and pave the way for multidisciplinary collaborations. Get the most out of the great network you are part of – the Helmholtz Association.

The Organizers

The Helmholtz Juniors consist of two elected representatives from each Helmholtz Centre representing about 6800 PhD students. Our primary goals are fostering exchange and networking, improving working conditions and expanding the range and availability of training courses and workshops.

Two years ago, we had the idea to organize a PhD conference open to everybody who would like to get more out of the Helmholtz Network. Today, we are proud to announce that motivated PhD students from various Helmholtz Centres have organised such a conference!

See you in Braunschweig!
